MRS. LEONETTI DEAD AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Mrs. Leonetti, wife of Walter A. Leonetti, the head of a San Francisco undertaking parlor, died last Tuesday as a result of an attack of pneumonia.

This sad news is a shock to the entire community, all of whom knew, sympathized with and respected the deceased. She was widely known as Mrs. Winifred C. Lasswell.

Personally she was a charming, friendly, appealing person that no one could meet without thinking kindly of her.

Several years ago she was left a widow, with three small children to care for, by the death of Edward C. Lasswell, the first resident undertaker of this city.

Out of her grief she came forth bravely, and determined to carry on her husband's business, and thus became the undertaker of this city, and, perhaps, the first woman of this state to conduct such a business. Courageously she met every adverse experience that offered itself. She entered houses of mysterious death where strong men feared to go. In the middle of the night she went down the bank of desolate Salada Beach to get the body of Father Heslin, the victim of the scheming assassin, William Hightower. It took nerve to do such acts, but frail as her body was, she had the will to do that carried her through all difficulties.

Although numerous friends, who recognized her worth, did all they could for her, still she had many obstacles to overcome in her business, in order to make a living. Industriously and meekly she struggled on with the ambition of one day having a beautiful and commodious building in which she might more efficiently accomplish her work.

In the last sad attentions to the departed entrusted to her care she was particularly successful. Not a thing was left undone and the result was so satisfactory that the mourners always felt that Mrs. Lasswell had done much to make the funeral easier.

She was spared to see a realization of a nice building for her business. During the past year it was completed and is at once a credit to this city and an enduring monument to the energy of an ambitious woman.

Mr. Leonetti, to whom she was married about two years ago, her three children, her sisters, her mother and numerous other relatives and friends are deeply cast down over her untimely death.

It seems such a pity that one so young, with so many prospects before her, should be called away.

However, all that can be done now is to offer sympathy to the bereaved husband and children and other relatives, while it is generally acknowledged that one of the real characters in the life of our community has gone to her everlasting rest in eternity.

The funeral took place today, Friday. A requiem mass was sung for the repose of her soul at St. Maximus church in this city.

ENTERTAIN FRIENDS AT NEW YEAR'S DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. A. Fonseca, 1060 Brunswick street, gave a New Year's dinner to a few of their friends. The rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion, and twenty-nine guests were present. A grab bag was offered at the completion of the dinner, and all of the guests received a favor. After the dinner the floor was cleared for dancing. All spent a most enjoyable evening. Mrs. A. Fonseca furnished the music for the dancing.

Among those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames A. Fonseca, S. Chapman, H. Capell, Paul Richardson, C. Rinehart, W. Regan, Spence, Jones, Harvey, West and Taylor; Mrs. Ralph Strathearn; Misses Naomi Phillips, Kathleen Regan, Lillian Regan, Helen Rinehart; Laurence Rusting, Charles Fish, Charles Dryer, Bradley Smith, Jackie Strathearn, Jimmy Strathearn, Walter Chapman, William Wilson.

ENTERTAINS ON NEW YEAR'S

Mr. and Mrs. Giomi entertained a number of friends at their home, 162 Parkview avenue, on New Year's day. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Gagliano, Mr. and Mrs. Fontana and daughter Emelia, Mr. and Mrs. Deffino and family, A. Perpoli and C. Baldacci, with their accordions; Mr. and Mrs. Vernazzo and son of San Bruno; Mr. and Mrs. Passerino and Master Henry Passerino of San Francisco; Misses Iola, Agnes, Elena and Grace Giomi, and Masters Frank, Paul and Ernest Giomi. A delicious ravioli dinner, with all the trimmings, was served, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the guests. Singing and dancing was enjoyed after dinner, the guests departing at an early hour in the morning.

POPULAR DALY CITY WOMAN ANSWERS FINAL SUMMONS

Mrs. Otilie Schmidt, wife of F. W. Schmidt, passed away Friday, January 1, at 1:50 p. m., following a brief illness. This sad news came as a distinct shock to her numerous friends and acquaintances, as Mrs. Schmidt, who had been a resident of Daly City for more than fourteen years, was one of the best beloved women of our city. She had the reputation of being an excellent neighbor, untiring in her efforts to relieve distress, especially in times of sickness, and was beloved by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance.

Mrs. Otilie Schmidt was born in Buffalo, N. Y. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Fred W. Schmidt, head of a printing establishment, a daughter, Verna, aged 15; a nice, Esther Schmidt, aged 22; a nephew, Clarence Schmidt, aged 24; as well as numerous friends.

Funeral services were held last Monday afternoon at 2:30 at the W. C. Lasswell undertaking parlors, the services being conducted by the Rev. S. C. McClintic, with interment in Mt. Olivet cemetery. There was a large attendance at the funeral and many floral offerings.

The bereaved family have the sincere sympathy of the community in this hour of their sad bereavement. Daly City has lost a most loveable and useful citizen.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS MAKE PLANS FOR COMING YEAR

Resuming its activities for the new year, El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, held its first regular meeting on Wednesday evening last in Masonic Hall, Daly City. Committees to consider plans for the coming year were formed and members are looking forward to many events of great interest and pleasure.

Installation of the newly elected officers will take place on Wednesday evening, January 20, in Masonic Hall. A reception and program, followed by a banquet, will be enjoyed by the members of El Carmelo and visitors from other Parlors of the order.

On account of this event, the Native Daughters will not hold a whist party this month. The date for their next whist party will be announced at a later time. Watch for it in the next issue of the Record.

GRACE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Ladies Aid of Grace Presbyterian church served their first monthly luncheon of this year Wednesday noon. Between ninety and one hundred plates were served to the satisfaction of all. Aftr the luncheon the society met in regular session, sixteen members being present.

The society is doing splendid work with Mrs. George Riddell as president and Mrs. T. Swan, treasurer, and Mrs. Alward, secretary, and the results of last year's work is most gratifying to the society and church.

The official board of the church will meet on Thursday evening of this week at the church at 8 p. m.

The Boys' Club meets Thursday evening at 3:30, and the boys are developing in a splendid way in team work and co-operation and manly characteristics. Parents will do well to aid the pastor of the church in this excellent community work.

A Girls' Club is being organized and will meet in the near future for work and recreational sports.

We are trying to build for the cause of Christ, for the community and for future homes by training boys and girls for members of society and Christian citizenship. Help us along by encouraging your young people to come.

The regular Bible school on Sunday morning at 10. All who are not attending Bible study are urged to come.

Divine worship at 7:30 p. m. Theme, "Crying Over Spilled Milk." Good music and a real welcome to all.

Come, spend an hour in God's house.

CONSIDER PROPOSED WORK ON COUNTY BAY SHORES

Recommendations on the proposed dredging of Redwood Creek at Redwood City, and other improvements along the bay shore of San Mateo county are being prepared by Major John W. N. Schulz, district engineer for the War department in San Francisco, following a survey completed several weeks ago.

The recommendations are to be forwarded to Washington for consideration of the present congress. Included are the findings of the hearing on proposed San Francisio bay bridges, held in San Francisco December 18. when proponents of four spans proposed between San Francisco and Oakland asked for modification of the government ruling against any low level span north of San Mateo.

POLICE CAPTAIN GOFF ADDRESSES MEETING

"Prohibition has come to stay," said Captain Charles Goff, ex-prohibition agent, and at pnesert captain of police in San Francisco, addressing a meeting at the Daly City Methodist church last Sunday evening. "I have been a police officer in San Francisco for over twenty years. I have seen the city before prohibition and after prohibition. And I have seen a great improvement. There have been greater bank savings, fewer arrests, less crime and more joy in the homes. More people own their own homes. More mothers and children are happy, better clothed and fed. It takes time to get good enforcement of any law. It will never be perfect. Take murder, for example. We still have that.

"Education and public opinion will bring better enforcement, and better enforcement will bring a happier, greater nation."

Captain Goff has come in close touch with the facts for many years. He knows the "South of Market" district like a book. And he says prohibition has already been a blessing to the city.

"If prohibition is a failure, why are the 'booze men' kicking?" he asked. "It is because is is hurting their business! The business that is well advertised and open to all the public is most likely to succeed. The 'booze' business is now located in the dark alley. The open saloon is gone forever.

"The temperate nation is going to control the market of the world. Europe knows this and therefore wants America to return to whisky so that they can beat us."

Captain Goff invited citizens of Daly City to send written information giving full details of lawbreakers, to No. 3, City Hall avenue, San Francisco. Your name will not be made public, or used, if you request it.

Captain Goff has risked his life many times for the cause of prohibition. He says he believes in it more firmly than ever, and believes that in time it will be well enforced, providing public opinion will help the officers.

Next Sunday evening at 7:30 the pastor, Mr. S. C. McClintic, will discuss the subject "Is Roman Catholicism a Menace to America?"

A BEAUTIFUL CEREMONY

The home of Mrs. S. P. White, 220 Irvington street, Daly City, was the scene of a beautiful ceremony last Sunday afternoon, when three children were administered the sacrament of baptism, the Rev. S. C. McClintic, pastor of the local Methodist church, officiating. William Ray Singer, son of F. M. and Ada Singer, 6307 Mission street, Dorothy Alma White, daughter of Albert and Alma White, 220 Irvington street, and Marjorie Irene Grantham, daughter of George and Jessie Grantham, 38 Bepler street, were the children. Over twenty people, including proud grandparents and friends, witnessed the ceremony.

NEW STEEL BRIDGE PLANNED TO RELIEVE MOTOR TRAFFIC

With the completion of the new structural steel bridge at Mount Vernon and San Jose avenues, San Francisco, early next April for motor vehicle traffic, the peninsula's great traffic problem will be partially solved, according to the opinion of various traffic experts. The new bridge is being constructed to replace the old steel trestle built in 1890 for the San Mateo Cemeteries Electric Company, the first electric railroad to the peninsula. It will cost $150,000 and will have a length of 600 feet with a 60-foot roadway flanked by two 10-foot sidewalks.

Oppose Closing of Street

Business interests of South San Francisco will oppose an order of the State Railroad Commission for the closing of Linden avenue, South San Francisco, where it crosses the tracks of the Southern Pacific Company, it is reported. The city trustees, representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and others are preparing to attend a hearing of the matter before the commission in the near future.

Dairyman Has Leg Amputated

A. S. Barron, pioneer dairyman of Leslie, is at the Mills Memorial hospital, where physicians were forced to amputate his right leg, due to an infection. Barron is well known in San Mateo county, having been one of the leading dairy and stock men of the district for more than twenty-five years.

Hillsoborough Has New Mayor

Henry T. Scott, Hillsborough financier and member of the board of trustees, has been elected mayor of Hillsborough to succeed the Rev. William A. Brewer, resigned.

COYOTE POINT BRIDGE PROJECT ABANDONED

With the reports that engineers of the Frank C. Towns interests, in charge of the survey of the Coyote Point bridge project, are dismantling their machinery and barges at South San Francisco, indications are that the bridge project is doomed, for the present at least, says the Burlingame Advance.

Towns some months ago posted a $50,000 bond with the San Mateo county board of supervisors that the survey for the bridge would be completed by his engineers and that if the span was found feasible from a business standpoint the bridge would be built.

This direct action on the bridge enterprise followed three years of promises and delay during the time that Frank Elbridge Webb, original holder of the bridge franchise, had control.

Preliminary reports on the survey, started about a month ago by Towns' engineers, indicated that they had found unsubstantial mud bottom in the bay along the line of the span at a depth of 150 feet. It was intimated at that time that the prospects for construction of the bridge were unfavorable.

Because of the shallow waters along the shore at any point south of South San Francisco, the barges and equipment were sent out from that point. With the report Monday that the dismantling of the machinery is under way, it is almost a certainty that the entire project is to be abandoned. A survey necessary to the building of the bridge, had the enterprise been deemed feasible, would have taken a much longer time than has been spent on the survey thus far, which is further indication that Towns will not build the span.

DESTROY YOUR OLD YELLOW AND BLACK LICENSE PLATES

When you place the new 1926 blue and white license plates on your car, destroy the old yellow and black plates. Do not throw them along the roadside or in the street, where they may be picked up by anyone.

This request to motorists is made by the California State Automobile Association on behalf of the law enforcement officers of the state. According to the Association, which is issuing license plates to its 60,000 members, through twenty-four of its district offices, automobile thieves are particularly active during the renewal registration period. It is a practice of those who traffic in stolen cars to replace the number plates on the car with old plates which have been discarded.

As cars with 1925 license plates can operate unmolested until after January 30, it is particularly difficult for the authorities during the re-registration period to recover a stolen car when its regular license plates have been replaced with a set of discarded ones.

Thousands of sets of plates were issued by the Association this week as the rush of the renewal registration period began. Sufficient clerical help had been provided, however, so that Association members have been able to obtain their new numerals promptly without waiting in line.

COMPILATION OF REGISTER IS NOW IN PROGRESS

The compilation of the 1926 Great Register for San Mateo county was undertaken in earnest on Tuesday, when County Clerk Elizabeth Kneese and a large force of deputies began the work. The registration books are being distributed to various sections of the county and within the next few days the signing of electors will be in full swing.

All county officials of San Mateo county must face the voters this year, including Superior Judge George H. Buck, who is now concluding his six year term.

The primary election, at which time state officials will also be nominated, will occur on August 31, registration for same closing on July 31. The general election will be held on November 2, registration closing on October 2.

JEFFERSON BASKETBALL TEAM

The Jefferson boys' B basketball team traveled through a blanket of fog to defat the Half Moon Bay boys in basketball last Tuesday evening. The score was 21 to 7. For Jefferson, Ed Devincenzi played the best game, scoring seven field goals and one foul, a total of 15 points, while his partner in the forward position, Charles Aiello, scored four points. The other boys on the team were Albert Saarinen, George Baker and Lloyd Lagomarsino. Their next game is with Mountain View.

ANNOUNCES AIMS FOR SCHOOL MANAGEMENT

This article on the Jefferson Union high school will deal with that very essential part of any school or industry, namely the aims. Of course it is absolutely necessary in order to hit a target that there be a target to shoot at. The object of school work is to train for something. What is that something?

There are four major aims accepted now by leading theorists in the field of education and adopted by the National Education Association. In brief these are as follows:

1. To develop the health.
2. To prepare for a vocation.
3. To prepare for worthy home and community membership.
4. To prepare for the worthy use of leisure.

These aims have been accepted by the faculty of the high school and each teacher has worked out definitely the aims of his or her course. All four of these aims are not met in each class, of course, but it is hoped that each pupil will so choose his course under the guidance of his advisory teacher that he will be well grounded in all of these objectives upon graduation.

The aims of a few of the faculty will be given in detail.

Miss Albushie, girls' physical education teacher, reports:

Aims in Physical Education

My idea of physical education was well expressed when Williams said: "The aim of physical education is to provide opportunity for individuals to act in situations which are physically wholesome, mentally stimulating and satisfying and socially sound."

I. Hygienic Aim. Each pupil should have plenty of exercise. Activity stimulates the circulatory, respiratory and other functions of the body. This side of big muscle activity is the only developmental source of health. Thus 100 per cent organic vigor is possible only as the result of participation in plenty of outdoor activity.

II. Recreational Aim. Games and sports furnish development and recreative use of free hours. It is my aim to make each pupil learn and love as many games, team and individual sports as possible. Folk and natural dancing may also afford wholesome use of leisure to those skilled in the art. There is too much passive amusement in the automobile and the movie.

III. Educational Aims. 1. Ethical Character. This quality is not secured in an abstract way as in a Sunday school class or in a formal class in manners and morals. Concepts of fair play, self control, courage, good manners and perseverance, etc., are built up from a variety of experience in life. Moral situations arise frequently on account of the social nature of play. Fundamental instincts and emotions are exercised continually in play life. The kind of specific response developed will depend on adult leadership. Children must learn adult standards. The physical education teacher can do much to set up the proper standards.

2. Citizenship. It is my aim to afford opportunity for pupils to receive training in the choosing of leaders, being followers, feeling loyalties, and exercising fair play. The playground is a democratic institution. Here if anywhere all children meet on a common footing.

IV. Good Posture. Proper instruction and exercise may lead to erect bearing and good posture and will prevent growth divergences. The apalling numbers of disabled in the army due to poor posture and foot troubles were largely preventable by means of proper instruction and exercise.

Aims in the English Department, Mr. Binckley and Miss Staib.

I. Vocational Training. Since correct speech and carefully organized and expressed thoughts are essential to all vocations, the study of English aims to give vocational training by frequent training in oral reports, in outlines, an in organization of ideas as in themes.

II. Social Co-operation. Habits of social co-operation are formed when each student is made responsible for securing and reporting on some piece of information for the benefit of the class. The fact that individual neglect and lack of enthusiasm for a piece of work retards the entire class is constantly emphasized, and when the work is left undone, excuses and apologies are made to the class rather than to the teacher.

III. Proper Use of Leisure. This is prepared for in the English department by bringing before the students the worth while literature of all time. These classics are not "studied"—rather they are presented in a way to show the reality of the message which they bring. Thus the primary object of teaching literature is to make it attractive so that boys and girls will be incited to explore further into classics by themselves.

Now for a more direct preparation for a vocation.

Aims of the Home Economic Department, by Miss Hoover.

1. To make the work practical. Note—Work in cooking is done in large lots where possible, and sold.
2. To develop and appreciation of color harmony, simplicity, and appropriateness of dress.
3. To familiarize students with qualities and use of the standard the names, characteristics, wearing textile fabrics.
4. In the cooking laboratory to work for efficiency and to work willingly and cheerfully.
5. To develop habits of neatness and cleanliness.
6. To give a practical knowledge of food values and food combinations, table setting and the serving of meals.

Aims of this type have been adopted by all of the members of the faculty of the high school. Can it be questioned whether or not the thinking about aims improves the quality of the class room work? If space permitted, you would be interested in knowing the aims of all of the faculty.

In conclusion, a setting up of aims is desirable in all business enterprises, but in school work teachers must live close to their aims, and constantly polish them to keep them bright.

TIME EXTENDED ON SOFT DRINK PERMITS

Proprietors of soft drink establishments operating under temporary permits granted by San Mateo county supervisors were given two weeks additional time for renewal of their licenses, under a decision of the board meeting Monday at Redwood City.

The extension came when District Attorney Franklin Swart said that the new county license ordinance would not be ready for about two weeks. It is expected that the new ordinance will be submitted at the next board meeting. Until then, the present temporary permits, which were due to expire last Saturday, will remain in force.

The first report of John J. Garland, newly apointed milk inspector for San Mateo county, was submitted at the Monday session of the board of supervisors. Mr. Garland's report shows San Mateo county's milk supply to be of unusually high grade.

A new culvert under the state highway near Lawndale was accepted by the supervisors on the recommendation of County Engineer George A. Kneese, and a map of property of the Belmont Country Club was accepted and filed.

The contract for lighting in the Colma district was renewed for a period of five years with the Pacific Gas and Electric Company as the only bidder.

An application for an additional light over the highway at San Louis avenue, Lomita Park, was granted.

County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese was instructed to write to the Pacific Gas and Electric Company relative to the removal of a pole at Colma, and to the State Highway Commission relative to draining the highway at Santa Cruz avenue, Menlo Park. The latter was on the recommendation of Supervisor John MacBain, who said the surface water accumulated at the crossing to a depth of eight inches during recent rains.

Abandonment of streets in the former Union Coursing Park at Colma, now the grounds of the Jefferson Union high school, was continued pending an investigation by property owners, headed by the D. H. and A. Edwards Company.

Deeds were exchanged with the Koff Realty Company for abandonment of a portion of the old Alameda de las Pulgas, former highway passing through a portion of the White Oaks tract north of Redwood City.

On application of Supervisor Manuel Francis, Half Moon Bay, the board instructed County Engineer Kneese to prepare estimates on the cost of installing about two miles of guard rails on the San Mateo-Half Moon Bay road.

A map of a recent subdivision of property in San Mateo Park by Baldwin & Howell, realty firm, was approved by the board.

WAIT AT THE BOX WHEN TURNING IN FIRE ALARM

The fire commissioners of Daly City wish to inform the public that when a fire alarm is turned in, the person turning in the alarm should remain at the fire alarm box until some of the firemen arrive, that they may be able to direct the firemen to the location of the fire. This action will save the firemen much time and trouble, and may be the means of preventing a disastrous blaze.

United States Lags Behind European Nations in Pure Science Research

By SECRETARY HOOVER, U. S. Department of Commerce.

IT IS, unfortunately, true, that we can claim no such rank in pure science research as that which we enjoy in the field of industrial research. Instead of leading all other countries in the advancement of fundamental scientific knowledge, the United States occupies a position far in the rear of the majority of European nations.

The difficulty we experienced in securing a place in science beside the nations of Europe can hardly be due to a lack of men of innate ability, judging from the leading part already played by the United States in finance, in architecture and in applied science. It results partly from the fact that American civilization is only beginning to emerge from the pioneering stage, and partly from the financial and other inducements which so often lead talented men reluctantly to accept well-paid industrial positions instead of poorly paid academic and research posts.

We have in recent years developed our industrial research upon a scale hitherto unparalleled in history. We have an increase in some ten years from 100 to over 500 laboratories engaged upon search for applications of known scientific fact and law. These results have been magnificent. But all these applied science laboratories are dependent upon the raw material which flows from the laboratories and men engaged in pure science. And the industrial investigators are the first to demand more support to pure science.

Not only is our nation today greatly deficient in the number of men and equipment for this patient groping for the sources of fundamental truth and natural law, but the sudden growth of industrial laboratories has in itself endangered pure science research by drafting the personnel of pure science into their ranks—depleting at the same time not only our fundamental research staff, but also our university faculties, and thus to some degree drying the stream of creative men at the source. Thus applied science itself will dry up unless we maintain the sources of pure science.

Failure of Designers of Street Cars to Keep Pace With Developments

By CHARLES GORDON, in Electric Railway Journal.

In that a large proportion of its patronage is and has been necessity-riding lies the explanation for the failure of designers of street cars to keep pace with modern developments in other forms of transportation. For many years cars have been built almost entirely from a utilitarian viewpoint. Due to concentration of thought on the mechanical features, the general appearance of the car has received only limited and secondary consideration. The effect of proposed innovations on attracting riders has received only meager consideration.

Automobile competition has changed conditions. There seems to be no fundamental reason why the street car cannot be made as attractive to the eye as can an automobile vehicle carrying its own power plant. There is no more reason for a street car to look like a lumbering box on wheels than for an automobile to look that way. Proper study of lines and proportions will produce an improvement in street car appearance comparable with that which the same kind of study produced in the automotive vehicle. Similar consideration of the interior appointments will much to make the street car an attractive place in which to ride.

Short-Time, Childless Married Women Mercenary Alimony Diggers"

By HARRY A. LEWIS, Chicago Divorce Judge.

The idea of the marriage institution is that man and wife shall live together and propagate the race. When they separate, both cease, in that regard, to be of any benefit to the community.

Why a healthy woman should receive alimony from a divorced husband is beyond my comprehension. If he wants to marry again he is forced to consider the burden of the payments to his first wife. Yet she is free to remarry when she wishes. The alimony automatically stops then, but if she so desires she may remain single and force her husband to support her until old age. I do not consider that a fair proposition. Short-time childless married women who seek easy divorce are the most mercenary of alimony diggers.

My court is clogged with cases in which wives are seeking to put in jail husbands who failed to keep up alimony payments. I sympathize with the husbands in many cases and there will not be any more of that class of cases in this court.

To Cut Costs in Manufacture of Farm Machinery by Standardization

By FINLEY P. MOUNT, in Iron Trade Review.

One of the simplest ways to cut our costs as manufacturers of farm machinery is further to standardize in sizes and types of machines. In this way we shall not only help ourselves but contribute still further to the ability of the American farmer so to reduce his costs that he too can meet foreign competition both at home and abroad. It is not the price of farm products which makes or unmakes American farm prosperity, but the spread between the cost of production and the market price. So long as we are on an exporting basis agriculturally, we must check our farm costs against the farm costs in foreign countries, and in doing this we start handicapped by a higher plane of living and a higher labor cost than that of any other country. This handicap we as machinery manufacturers can help to overcome by providing such improvements in farm equipment as will enable the American farmer to produce more cheaply than his foreign competitor.

This Practice of Wives Demanding Alimony Without Any Just Cause

By JUSTICE S. B. STRONG, New York Supreme Court.

Some women must think that all they have to do is run away from their husbands and the court will hand them alimony awards that will keep them in idleness and luxury and their husbands at the grindstone. Maybe it is their idea of revenge. If they get an award of alimony before trial, they think that is the end of it. The wives are collecting alimony, the lawyers have pocketed their fees, so why bother about a decision that the husband has been guilty of cruel or inhuman conduct, and separate maintenance for the wife entirely justified and an honest thing?

It ought to be stopped, this practice of wives demanding alimony without any just cause.

I truly believe that alimony keeps couples from becoming reconciled. The woman who is being supported by her husband under order of the court, generally speaking, is not very anxious to effect a reconciliation with him.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

"It's a Privilege to Live in California."

One of the largest land deals that has been recorded in months in Sonora county was the transfer of 112 acres of the 153-acre ranch owned by Mary G. Cochrane near Healdsburg to eight persons. Harry Pitts bought 24.5 acres for $8,000; Pietro Visso, 10 acres, $10,000; Albert Esaia, 10 acres, $16,000; Lily Cueno, 20 acres, $34,000; Edna M. Toomey, 15 acres, $14,500; Louis J. Bottini, 11 acres, $12,500; Sonora County Abstract bureau, 21.4 acres, no price given. In an interlocked deal, Edna M. and John T. Toomey sold four acres to Robert Weston for $5,000. A total of eighteen documents were filed in the recorder's office at Santa Rosa in connection with the transfer. The price paid for the land was $106,000.

The state reclamation board has approved the action of its committee in making arrangements with the board of control for the purchase of lands for transfer to the United States government as a spoil area in dredging operations at the mouth of the Sacramento river. The board authorized the state treasurer to set a new date for the sale of $7,300,000 worth of bonds to be used in the construction of the Sutter-Butte bypass. These bonds have been offered for sale on two occasions but no legal bid was received.

The Sunnyvale (Santa Clara county) board of trustees and citizens of the city have signed a truce and the war over paving improvements which had been ordered by the board and which was said to have imposed too heavy a financial burden upon the taxpayers, has been brought to a close. Peace was declared when a 3 to 2 vote canceled orders for city-wide paving construction. It was decided to submit further street improvement proposals to a vote of the people and with that officially recorded everyone was happy.

Charging that the schoolboy habit of playing marbles "for keeps" encourages gambling and theft, Chief of Police C. W. Potter and Probation Officer W. B. Young of Stockton, have requested parents and teachers to discourage the practice. A case is mentioned by the officers in which a student, after losing all his marbles, was guilty of theft several times at a Stockton store to replenish his supply. The youth said others followed the same course when they lost their marbles.

Announcement is made in Hanford, Kings county, that a financial group composed of A. C. Balch, W. G. Kerckhoff and Hen H. Myer has purchased control of the Hanford Gas and Power company. These men now control the Southern California and Midway Gas companies. F. W. Hunter, now vice-president and general manager of the Central Counties Gas company, with headquarters in Visalia, Tulare county, has been selected for that position with the local company.

More than 21,000 California war veterans were granted tax exemption up to the sum of $1,000 during 1925 than were exempted in 1924, according to figures made public by M. D. Lack, secretary of the state board of equalization. In 1925, 120,938 veterans availed themselves of the exemption law, thus relieving from taxation $69,127,986 worth of property owned by them, while in 1924, 99,645 former service men were granted exemptions on $62,590,710 worth of property.

Expansion plans of the Southern California Edison company for the coming year were discussed at a meeting of the company's executives in Los Angeles a short time ago. The gathering was attended by about 400 representatives of all departments and branches of the company in the ten southern counties of the state. The concern's 1926 budget calls for an expenditure of $33,000,000 on improvements and additions to its various plants.

Final approval of the consolidation of the First National bank and the Crocker National bank of San Francisco was given when the stockholders of the latter institution voted in favor of the merger. Under the name of the Crocker First National Bank and the affiliated Crocker First Federal Trust company, the consolidated institutions opened their doors in the present quarters of the First National bank on January 2d.

World war veterans from four counties, San Francisco, Marin, Alameda and San Mateo, are to meet in San Francisco January 10 for the first of the fifteen statewide conferences of the members of the American Legion posts of the state to consider problems affecting the ex-service men.

Mrs. Stacey Baker of Colusa, oldest living pioneer of Colusa county, has just celebrated her ninety-fourth birthday. Grandma Baker, as she is known, was born in Missouri in 1831. She fully expects to live out the century.

The state will spend $418,800 on building improvement at San Quentin prison during 1926, it was announced by the state board of control. In addition to the $150,000 building already being erected for women prisoners, the construction program includes reception quarters for visitors and other improvements.

Mrs. George Hall, pioneer resident of Colusa county, is dead at the age of 77. She came to California about sixty years ago.

Members of the Tracy, San Joaquin county, chamber of commerce hailed the New Year from the summit of Mount Diablo.

William G. Walker, former collector of internal revenue in Fresno, was sworn in as chief of police of that city and took charge of the department.

A human skeleton with the skull missing was found on an island in the Sacramento river east of Anderson, Shasta county. The coroner is trying to establish the identity of the skeleton.

Twelve hundred feet over and above environs of Palo Alto, Santa Clara county, belong to the city, according to one ordinance, and aviators may fly within that range only on penalty of being arrested.

Dr. C. W. Halvor Rasmussen, formerly of San Francisco, collapsed on the pavement in the business district in Los Angeles recently and received injuries in the fall from which he died while en route to a hospital.

Purchase of the Hall tract, at Sunnyvale, Santa Clara county, adjoining the Sunnyvale grammar school property on the west, has been announced by the board of school trustees. The tract will be utilized for playground purposes.

Voters of the Placer Union High school district will decide on January 26 whether the district shall issue bonds to the amount of $250,000 for the repair of the present high school building and the erection of three additions thereto.

Additional applications for water from the Feather river and tributaries have been filed with the state division of water rights by the Feather River Power company in connection with its $7,000,000 hydro-electric projects in Plumas county.

Along with announcement of other building progress at Van Nuys, Los Angeles county, comes word that the congregation of St. Elizabeth's Catholic church is preparing to erect a parish hall and parochial school at a total expenditure of $50,000.

"School teaching couples" are no longer welcomed in Sacramento under a new rule of the city board of education which says that no teacher who already has a husband or wife in the Sacramento school service will be given employment henceforth.

The Biggs Union High School district, in Sutter county, is having an addition built to its present high school building at Biggs. The new addition will be ninety feet long and will contain the principal's office, domestic art room and science room.

Plans are being prepared for the remodeling of the building at Gobilan and Main streets, Salinas, Monterey county. The building, when improvements are completed, will be used for banking quarters by the Bank of Italy. The work will cost about $25,000.

Colusa, Colusa county, has just completed a $15,000 building to house the municipal water works. It is a concrete building, equipped with all modern conveniences for the distribution of the town's water, which is pumped from a deep well into a high tank.

Dr. T. C. Edwards, 65, former president of the California State Medical association; president of Salinas Rotary club, and active in the Masonic and Elk fraternal organizations, died suddenly while playing golf on the Salinas golf course at Salinas, Monterey county.

Application for a state charter to engage in the manufacture and marketing of sheet metal materials has been filed with Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan by the Ferry Sheet Metal Works, Inc., of San Francisco. The corporation's capitalization is given as $50,000.

The state railroad commission has denied the application of Pickwick Stages, northern division, a certificate to operate through service between Fresno and San Francisco by way of Pacheco Pass, but granted the company permission to operate a supplemental service between Taft and Lost Hills.

The state board of control announced that fifty-one acres of the old Pacific Colony site in Los Angeles county will be sold at public auction. Proceeds of the sale will be used in development of the new Pacific Colony property, where a state hospital for mentally diseased patients is being erected.

Orangevale colony land, eight miles from Folsom prison, is the latest to be offered the state board of prison directors as a site for the proposed state convict farm. The Orangevale Orchard and Vineyard company, submitting the proposal, says the tract includes 440 acres and is valued at $68,000. A number of other acreages are under consideration by the prison board.

West Coast Peninsula Theaters, capitalized at $1,000,000, filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state recently. E. J. Arkush and Doretta Arkush of Burlingame, May K. Giffen, Redwood City, and Jacob Samuels of San Francisco are named as directors.

Clyde E. Wyborg, of Petaluma, formerly in charge of the Cow Testing association in Sonoma county, and later with the Stanislaus County Farm bureau, in charge of the cow testing work, has given up the work and taken a position as accountant with the Sonoma County National bank.

Have Antenna of Very Few Losses

How to Construct Insulator That Will Be an Aid in Sharp Tuning.

In this day and age of low loss receivers and high selectivity, writes a correspondent in Radio News, it is necessary to have an antenna of very few losses, or the resistance of the antenna will be so high as to make it impossible to tune the set sharply.

How to do this? The antenna must be constructed of wire that will not corrode readily, enameled wire being the best. However, the most important thing is to have the best insulation possible. The very best insulator for the antenna is air, but of course that is out of the question.

Use of the Plate.

Doubtless, someone will think that because this insulator was designed for a transmitting antenna that it will not be good for the average broadcasting antenna. It is only necessary to remove the aluminum plate at the end of the insulator and you will have one of the very best insulators for a one-wire antenna. The plate is for use only when the insulator is used on a cage antenna with a transmitter.

Pieplate and Glass Toothbrush Holder Used for Insulator.

The material that is necessary is as follows:

Long type toothbrush holder with screwcap at each end. This can be bought for about twenty cents.

If the insulator is for transmitting antenna use a small aluminum plate. The other materials are odds and ends and can be found around the work shop.

Using Melted Paraffin.

Begin by moving the caps at the ends of the holder. Stuff small pieces of cotton in each end of the tube. Now it will be possible to pour in melted paraffin. Just enough should be poured in to seal the tube. This will prevent moisture from entering the tube and thus destroying the insulating power of the glass. Instead of paraffin, sealing wax, such as found on the top of dry cells, may be used to seal the ends of the insulator. Now eyehooks of about the same design as shown in the sketch and threaded on the end, should be constructed. When the eyehook is attached to the cap it will be found necessary to place a big washer on the inside of the cap and a smaller one on the outside of the cap. This will prevent the ventilation holes on the cap from pulling out. It is a simple matter to place the aluminum plate at the end of the insulator. When the plate is used it should always be put at the end of the insulator which is hooked to the antenna.

When it is constructed, you will have a very fine insulator, which takes very little time to build, has a remarkable pulling strength and is very cheap.

S. L. F. Condensers Aid Tuning of Wave Meters

The wave meter, whether it be plain or be made with all the finer improvements, is one of the most handy pieces of apparatus any builder of receiving sets can have. Heretofore, the tuning of a wave meter has been a rather difficult feat because a very slight change in capacity threw the circuit out of resonance.

The insertion of a straight-line frequency condenser in the wave-meter circuit will greatly facilitate the finding of the resonant point because a large change in dial setting is essential for a small change in capacity, except at one end of the dial, but as the frequency variation is the same, tuning may be accomplished with the same ease.

For wave-meter construction it is essential that condensers with heavy plates, strong supporting members and accurate spacing be used. This necessitates the use of an instrument with concentric plates because eccentric plate condensers are of a necessity made with thin plates, which makes the capacity calibration subject to change without notice.

How to Enlarge Holes When Building Receiver

The best way to make holes in a panel large enough to take the jacks or for the shafts of variable condensers, rheostats or other instruments, is to first drill a large hole and then replace the drill with a flat file of rather fine grain. A flat file will usually taper down to sufficient width to just about squeeze into the hole made by the drill and if it is turned in the brace slowly, usually in a reverse direction, the file will cut away the side of the hole, gradually enlarging it until it is of sufficient size to accommodate the jack. Do not try to work the drill fast or it may snap off the file. If it seems to stick and work itself into a self-cut thread, reverse the direction and work at a slower rate. This method of enlarging holes will greatly assist in building the receiver and at the same time will give a smooth, clean-cut hole.

Max Mason Is Against Eliminating Football

If football and other college activities are overemphasized in the lives of undergraduate students, it's the fault of the colleges, according to President Max Mason of the University of Chicago. The way to handle the situation is not to eliminate football, the president said at a recent meeting of alumni, but to make the classrooms so interesting that students will not become too greatly engrossed in outside work.

"We must put professors in the classrooms who will win the friendship of the students by their fine personalities and who will present their courses in a manner which will make the student's interest in his classes equal to or greater than his interest in campus activities," the president declared. "If we fail in this, we may as well close the classrooms and let the students play."

The university has adopted a program in accord with this policy, outlining a plan whereby eminent men will be secured to teach in the undergraduate schools, as well as in the upper class and graduate courses.

Hornsby Says Dead Ball Will Keep Hitters Low

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cardinals and champion batter, is of the opinion that no player in the National league will hit .350 or more next year if the league uses the same kind of a ball that the Cardinals played with during the final month of the 1925 pennant race.

The manager of the Cardinals declared that the new ball was not as lively as the old one and that it was harder for his players to get base hits in September than it was in the early part of the season.

Four small pieces of lead are now inserted in the cork center of the ball and this no doubt cuts down its resiliency.

Youngster's Good Record

A truly sensational performance is credited to Walter Laufer, eighteen-year-old aquatic marvel of the Central Y. M. C. A. of Cincinnati. In a recent trial in the 75-foot home pool he is reported to have achieved a 150-yard back-stroke swim in the startling time of 1:40 1-5 as against the listed world's record of 1:44 4-5, held jointly by Warren Kealoha of Honolulu, and John Weissmuller.

PENN OARSMEN TO FACE REAL TEST

Two Important Events Only Two Days Apart.

The hardest rowing schedule of any college in the United States has been arranged for the oarsmen of the University of Pennsylvania.

It will be a severe test for the new coaches, Fred Spuhn and Max Luft, both former oarsmen in the University of Washington intercollegiate championship crews, who are introducing the western rowing stroke.

Penn varsity crews are entered in six races, according to the tentative plans. The junior varsity and freshman crews will row in five each. Two of the events will be only two days apart, the Child's cup regatta being on May 20, and the American Henley on May 31.

This is to be the first time any college varsity crew will attempt to row in two regattas in less than a week. The Child's cup race will be held at Princeton and the American Henley on the Schuylkill.

"Penn's crews have built up a splendid reputation for sportsmanship," said Mr. Brown. "They have entered every college rowing contest open to them and do not want to miss any opportunity next season.

"We could not overlook the American Henley, despite the fact that we have an important race two days before. We feel that the American Henley is one of the important rowing events of the year, and we want to lend our help keeping up the prestige of that classic.

"If oarsmen are in proper condition, I don't think it makes any difference how many races they enter, and the outcome of the two races will be watched with interest."

In the American Henley it is likely the only college varsity crews will be Penn and Syracuse. It also is probable, however, that the Penn Athletic club senior eight will take part in this race, which is for the Steward's cup.

Joe Wright, formerly coach at Pennsylvania, recently asserted he will attempt to win the trophy which heretofore has been held only by college crews.

Trainer Hogg Scores a Triple Win With Horses

Captain Hogg, the Russley trainer, had ample reason to be satisfied with the well-planned raid which he carried out at Leicester just before flat racing for the year ended in England recently. Half the races on the card were won by horses trained by him, two of them being in his own name. Once before he had won three races in one afternoon, but his latest achievement is considered the more noteworthy in that it came in the last fortnight of the season when so many horses are much fancied to win.

The first of Captain Hogg's winning trio was Watchful, which, ridden by the younger Richards, started at 5 to 1. Watchful beat seven others, three of which were at shorter odds. Then came the victory of Yellow Underwing, at odds of 100 to 14, in the Leicestershire handicap, the feature of the day. Gordon Richards, whose brother, Clifford, rode Watchful, was astride Yellow Underwing. He also rode Captain Hogg's Saperlipopette to win the Apethorpe Nursery at odds of 100 to 30. In this race Gordon Richards showed his skill as a jockey by getting his mount home first by a neck.

Al Simmons Is Praised by Manager Connie Mack

"He's the best center fielder the American league has had since Tris Speaker was in his prime." That is Connie Mack's opinion of Al Simmons, his crack gardener.

"Simmons lacks the grace of Speaker in the field and at the bat, but in results he comes closer to equaling Speaker than any center fielder in the history of the American league," adds the usually reticent Mr. Mack.

Most American leaguers and baseball experts agree with Mack's rating of Simmons, who ranked next to Peckinpaugh as the American league's most valuable player.

Simmons is a right-handed batter and is the hardest hitting right-hander in the league. Harry Hellmann of the Detroit Tigers excepted.

Gleason to Aid Mack

Kid Gleason, one-time manager of the Chicago White Sox, has been signed to help Connie Mack of the Athletics. Gleason will act as coach.

TO VISIT GRAVES OF COMRADE DEAD

Plans for holding the 1927 national convention of the American Legion in Paris are being worked out rapidly, according to John J. Wicker, Jr., of Richmond, Va., chairman of the French convention travel committee of the Legion. The committee's arrangements, as already made, were officially approved by the national convention at Omaha, and the committee was authorized to continue with necessary details.

The convention, according to the committee, is to be "the occasion of a great national pilgrimage to our foreign cemeteries, the last resting place of approximately 50,000 of our own comrades, and to the battlefields where they fought and died, and where hundreds of thousands of our comrades suffered their wounds and disabilities. We believe that such a pilgrimage, coming in 1927, the tenth anniversary year of America's entrance into the World war and the creation of the A. E. F., in a real sense would be a 'second A. E. F.' the first A. E. F. having crossed the seas in time of war to aid in the struggle against the common enemy, and the second A. E. F., coming in time of peace, paying solemn homage to our own comrade dead, and promoting international peace and good will."

The latter part of September has been recommended by the committee as the best time for holding the convention. The French government has given assurances that it will place the Trocadero, the largest auditorium in Paris, with a seating capacity of 12,000, at the disposal of the convention.

Participation in the trip will be limited to those who have been bona fide paid-up members of the Legion for both 1926 and 1927, the auxiliary and minor lineal descendants of such members. Official ships will be designated to sail from Houston, Hampton Roads, New York, Boston and Montreal. One-fare railroad rates between the home and the port of embarkation have been assured. Reductions will also probably be given by French railroads. All Paris hotel accommodations of every class are to be held for the disposal of the Legion during the period of the convention.

The minimum round-trip time is estimated at 23 days from the Atlantic seaboard. This will give seven days in France to cover the convention and the pilgrimage. Longer periods and various side trips may be taken.

Savings clubs are being organized over the country so that persons desiring to make the trip may do so without financial difficulty.

UNIVERSAL SERVICE

UNIVERSAL service, the adoption of which by congress is the outstanding point on the American Legion legislative program for 1926, was indorsed by President Calvin Coolidge in his address before the Legion convention at Omaha. The President said in part:

"Undoubtedly one of the most important provisions in the national defense is a proper and sound selective service act. Such a law ought to give authority for a very broad mobilization of all resources of the country, both persons and materials. I can see some difficulties in the application of the principle, for it is the payment of a higher price that stimulates production; whenever it can be done without economic dislocation such limits ought to be established in time of war as would prevent so far as possible all kinds of profiteering.

"There is little defense which can be made of a system which puts some men in the ranks on very small pay and leaves others undisturbed to reap very large profits. . . . In the advent of war, power should be lodged somewhere for the stabilization of prices as far as that might be possible in justice to the country and its defenders."

In Memory of Wilson

A $200,000 memorial bridge over Pearl river, Mobile, Ala., was named the "Woodrow Wilson Bridge" in memory of the war-time President at the suggestion of Henry Graves Post of the American Legion at Mobile. The Legion ordered a bronze tablet placed on the bridge and a portion of the inscription will be a sentence from the address of President Wilson to congress asking for a declaration of war against Germany.

Meets in Philadelphia

Philadelphia has been chosen as the place for holding the 1926 national convention of the American Legion. The Legion gathering, to be held some time in October, will be a feature of the city's observance of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

LOOT!

BY ELMO SCOTT WATSON

(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

What Is a Pirate?

Pirate, n. A robber on the high seas; a freebooter; a buccaneer.

SO SAYS Mr. Webster, the friend of the cross-word puzzle fan, but his definition needs considerable qualification. It is doubtful if there was ever a pirate who was born to his profession. He usually began life at sea as an honest sailor. Perhaps a captain's cruelty caused the crew to mutiny, kill the hated officer, seize the ship, elect a new leader and sail off "on the account."

Or he may have been an honest seaman who was captured by some pirate leader and was compelled to enter service under the freebooter. Sometimes, it must be admitted, he willingly enough enrolled among the "brethren of the coast" and embarked upon the career which led inevitably to one end—the gallows.

Then, again, he may have commanded a privateer ship during one of the interminable wars of the nations who, two or three hundred years ago, were contesting for supremacy of the seas. In such a case he carried on legitimate warfare under a king's commission or a "letter of marque" against the shipping of his country's enemy. So on these privateering raids he learned his lessons of bloodshed and forcible seizure of property.

Another thing about pirates and piracy—the definition of these is largely a matter of point of view. Sir Francis Drake is one of England's greatest heroes, but the most ardent hero worshiper of the days when England was mistress of the seas cannot deny that Drake's earlier voyages were little more than buccaneering expeditions, even though his later exploits had the seal of royal approval as privateering expeditions against the hated Spaniard. But could you have asked King Philip to characterize Drake, it is unlikely that he would have spoken of him otherwise than as a "wicked and abandoned pyrate."

Sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander—what American boy has not thrilled at the deeds of John Paul Jones? Yet a British historian who wrote a "History of Highwaymen and Pirates" in 1814 gave Jones a prominent place as a pirate. And as late as 1924 another British chronicler of piratical deeds includes in his list of "Some Famous Pirate Ships and Their Captains" the names of the Bon Homme Richard and Capt. Paul Jones. So much depends upon your point of view!

The First Buccaneers

OFF the west coast of the island of San Domingo lies another little dot of land on the blue waters—Tortuga or Turtle island. Insignificant as this island is, it is important historically because it gave to history one of the most notorious types of pirate and to the English language the word "buccaneer."

Early in the Seventeenth century Tortuga was colonized by the French but the colony never prospered. The men who settled there were a reckless, unruly lot and their ranks were augmented from time to time by newcomers from the city slums of other European countries who certainly did not not elevate the moral tone of the community noticably.

"It was a singular community of savage, surly, fierce and filthy men," writes one historian. "These people went dressed in shirts and pantaloons of coarse linen which they steeped in the blood of animals they slaughtered. They wore round caps, boots of hog-skin drawn over their naked feet, and belts of rawhide, in which they stuck their sabers and knives. They also armed themselves with firelocks which threw a couple of balls, each weighing two ounces.

"The places where they dried and salted their meat were called boucans, and from this term they came to be styled bucaniers, or buccaneers, as we spell it. They were hunters by trade and savages in their habits. They chased and slaughtered horned cattle and trafficked with the flesh, and their favorite food was raw marrow from the bones of the beasts which they shot. They ate and slept on the ground, their table was a stone, their bolster the trunk of a tree and their roof the hot and sparkling heavens of the Antilles."

Although they were harmless enough, if let alone, the Spaniards who owned San Domingo (they called it Hispaniola in those days) were alarmed at the idea of any other nation getting a foothold on their territory and determined to get rid of the wild cattle hunters of Tortuga. So a Spanish expedition drove the bucaniers out, and to make sure they would not return killed off all the cattle.

Therein Spain made her great mistake. Deprived of their only means of livelihood the bucaniers began joining forces with the other freebooters who were then operating in the West Indies, and the bucaniers became the buccaneers and made their name as great a symbol of terror as the word pirate ever was. The reign of piracy which followed had much to do with weakening the power of Spain in the West Indies and, although France sometimes joined with Spain in trying to wipe out the buccaneers, their efforts were mainly futile. So the buccaneers became an international problem which was not solved for nearly a century.

TAX REFUND APPEAL LOST

California taxpayers apparently lost their expected $100,000,000 income tax refund from the government Monday by the long-waited ruling of the United States Supreme Court on the state's community property law.

The Supreme Court has held that income from community property is taxable as a whole, and the husband must pay the full tax, denying husband and wife the right to file separate income tax returns on their respective halves of the community income.

Declining to commit themselves until they have studied the court's decision more thoroughly, attorneys who have led the fight for the taxpayers announce that they see two possible courses of action, either of which might lead to a recovery of allegedly excess income taxes collected by the government.

One is that the court may not have considered the provisions of the California community property law since the legislature strengthened it in 1917, and would therefore order a tax refund retroactive to that year.

The other is that the court would grant a rehearing.

At any rate, the present decision is that income from community property is taxable as a whole, and the husband and wife may not file separate income tax returns.

Now comes the "better teeth" movement with its appropriate propaganda, at which the usual percentage of editors may be expected to bite.

VICTORY FOR GOVERNMENT

In a decision rendered last Monday, the United States Court of Appeals, sitting in San Francisco, struck a blow at the Doheny-Fall oil deal covering naval oil reserves in Elk Hills, worth millions.

A complete victory was registered for the government in the decision. The leases, obtained by E. L. Doheny, millionaire oil man, after his $100,000 loan to Albert E. Fall, then secretary of the interior, were ordered cancelled.

The court went further, and reversed the decision of the District court of Los Angeles, which had given Doheny $11,768,928.31 as reimbursement for sums already expended in developing the leases under the contract.

This had been awarded to Doheny in a previous decision handed down by Judge Paul J. McCormick in the United States District Court at Los Angeles last fall. In the same decision Judge McCormick had ordered the leases cancelled. The government, dissatisfied with the $11,768,928.31 award, appealed for a rehearing and the Doheny interests, protesting the cancellation of the leases, also appealed.

Monday's decision holds that there was bad faith in making the contracts and leases and that the defendant corporations are not entitled to equity. It upholds the lower court in all its findings relative to fraud and conspiracy.

Perhaps some time in the next generation this oil scandle will be settled, and every one will get their just deserts. The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly fine. Will Doheny and Fall get their just deserts? Perhaps!

MONUMENT TO EVE

Robert Quillen, one of America's foremost paragraphers and editor of the Tribune at Fountain Inn, S. C., has erected in his front yard a monument to his kinswoman, Eve, the reputed mother of the race.

The monument was executed by a local marble cutter, the design appropriately including a nicely carved apple, with twig and leaf, and bears the inscription: "In memory of Eve, the first woman."

Unfortunately, some of Mr. Quillan's neighbors "stared at the monument with incredulous horror," and criticised its propriety, according to his newspaper, in which he explained the motive which prompted him to erect the shaft.

He declared that Eve was a distant relative, so that the matter of the monument was purely a family affair. He also asserted that she was a fair and charming lady, deserving of a much finer monument than he had been able to provide for her, and he considered it almost incredible that in over 6,000 years none of her kinsmen had erected a stone to her memory.

But, as other members of her numerous family had not been consulted, we may understand how they feel about Mr. Quillen's taking upon himself the entire responsibility of honoring our ancestor.

People are jealous like that.

Sometimes a little illustration is worth more than a lot of argument, and so it happened in the case of a customer who thought his home merchant was asking too much for an article which he had priced at $3.25.

"Why," said the customer, "I can get the very same thing from a mail order house for $2.98."

"Well," said the merchant, "it cost me more than that, but to show you that I'm a good sport, I'll sell it on the same terms as the mail order house offers."

"Very well," said the customer. "Deliver it to my house and send the bill the first of the month."

"Oh, no," replied the dealer, "mail order houses do not do business on credit. Fork over the cash."

The buyer paid the cash.

"Now two cents for postage and five cents for the money order."

Sheepishly the customer paid over the seven cents.

"Now 35 cents expressage."

"Well, I'll be hanged," exclaimed the customer, but he came across and then said: "Now give it to me and I'll carry it home and be through with this foolishness.

"Give it to you? This is not Chicago, and you'll have to wait a week, at least."

Then the merchant put the money in the cash register and the article back on the shelf, adding:

"That makes $3.31, so it has cost you six cents more than if you had paid my price in the first place, and you still have to wait a week."

ECONOMIZE ON TIRES

While the price of crude rubber has dropped materially during the past month, it is still much too high. Last week the price was around 88 cents a pound, as compared with $1.11 a month ago. One year ago the price was only about 40 cents, which was considered high at that time.

Secretary Hoover of the Department of Commerce urges that all users of automobiles should endeavor to get as much mileage out of their tires as possible. Tires should be repaired before they become too far gone and all old rubber should be saved. By these means, he declares, the amount of rubber now used may be reduced 25 per cent, without lessening the driving of automobiles a single mile.

No prospect of a speedy return to former rubber prices is in sight, as production has been curtailed by the British monopoly, and even if American concerns start rubber plantations, as they expect to do, it will be several years before they will yield sufficient rubber to make this country independent of foreign control.

WHAT ONE BOY DID

Forty odd years ago a boy worker in a knitting mill saw the picture of a typewriter in an advertisement and formed a desire to write on one. He had never seen a real machine, for they were few in those days, but from the picture he made a keyboard for himself out of pieces of cardboard and practiced upon it so diligently that he later got a job as typist and was able to hold it.

Promotion for such a boy was naturally both sure and rapid. Each new position was used by him as a stepping stone toward a better one. A few weeks ago he reached the top.

His name is George H. Jones, recently elected chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, one of the most important positions in the world of business and industry.

He is a living rebuke to the careless and incompetent worker, whose only ambition is to "get by" for the time being. While every boy can not be expected to reach such a high place, all might greatly profit by the example of determination and industry set by George H. Jones.

Be a Milk Tippler, Says Dr. Schireson

Peaches and cream complexions of American women have their foundation in a milk diet, according to Dr. Henry J. Schireson, famous Chicago dermatologist and facial plastic surgeon.

Dr. Schireson.

Doctor Schireson has won fame by beautifying motion picture, musical comedy and vaudeville stars and many society women of America. He transformed Fanny Brice's nose, rejuvenated Eva Tanguay's face, removed sixty-four pounds of adipose tissue from Truly Shattuck in one operation, straightened the cross eyes of the leading lady of Singer's midgets, and has performed other corrections for making people young and beautiful.

Doctor Schireson has one infallible prescription for the attainment of beauty. It is: "One quart of milk a day, one hour of sunshine, and repeat ad libitum."

"Beauty specialists and cosmetic makers," says Doctor Schireson, "would be driven out of business in a few weeks if all the women of America would drink their quart of milk a day.

"Babies and children have complexions of angels for the reason that they are fed largely on milk. Milk used externally or internally is a beautifier. Anna Held, I believe, was the first actress who adopted the milk bath. While this was a novelty at the time, and her press agent undoubtedly made the most of it, the principle in itself was sound. But a beauty secret of even more value is the daily quart of milk taken as a part of the diet.

"The milk-fed girl is easily distinguished by the velvety texture and the healthy color of her skin. Milk is a wonderful body builder, because it contains every structural element. It is, in a way, an elixir of life.

"Authorities agree that milk is the most nearly perfect food but it is an extremely delicate one as well. Heat sufficient to kill all bacteria is the essential of absolutely pure and sterile milk. One of the advantages of evaporated milk, which is simply fresh cow's milk with sixty per cent of the water removed, is that it is entirely sterile and is more easily assimilated than ordinary market milk.

"Milk is mentioned forty-seven times in the Bible. The Promised Land of the Israelites was said to flow 'with milk and honey' and Ovid graded milk as second only to nectar, the drink of the gods."

SAYS NEW MESSIAH IS DUE

Early in 1925 we witnessed the capers of a religious sect who confidently awaited the end of the world on a certain set date, as many deluded followers of crazy prophets have done before them.

Now we are promised the second manifestation of Christ by a branch of the Theosophists, who have a hand-picked Messiah for the occasion.

Press dispatches of the past few days have carried announcements from the high priestess of the cult, Mrs. Annie Besant, who proclaims the second coming of Christ in the person of one J. Krishnamurti, a 30-year-old Hindu of Adyar, province of Madras, India, who has been in training, it appears, for the important role he is supposed to play in spiritual affairs.

Mrs. Besant has also chosen seven "disciples" for the new Messiah, it is announced from New York, while five others are to be designated in India.

The expectations of the followers of Mrs. Besant are disclosed, rather vaguely, in a dispatch which says: "The manifestations are looked for during the Christmas season, when Krisnamurti, who is now in India, is to be hailed as the human vehicle carrying the manifestation of Christ, with a mission on earth as a world teacher."

Theosophy is more of a philosophy than a religion, one of its central features being the doctrines of reincarnation, and it is an intresting system which has appealed to many bright minds. But it is doubtful whether the present Messiah stunt will make much of an impression in this somewhat skeptical age.

"Vaudeville is the best training for a picture actor." So says Ben Deely, for years famous in vaudeville, and one of the most mysterious figures in many bewildering personalities in "The Acquittal," Universal all star Jewell presentation of Rita Weiman's noted Broadway play, coming to the Daly Theatre next Thursday and Friday. Deeley plays a butler, a sinister figure lurking always in the background of a shadowy mystery surrounding a man's death. A massive court room scene, in which several hundred people appear, is one of the striking details of this remarkable offering.

According to tablets found along the Nile, marriage contracts were in vogue among ancient Egyptians.

Fish culture is receiving considerable attention in Florida, where an intensive study of suckers has been in progress for some time.

By securing safe, abundant heat, which is free from all odors and gases.

Let us explain how the "LITTLE GIANT" does it.

—The Little Giant is a gas floor furnace which is so constructed that the flame does not come in contact with the air heated, therefore the oxygen in the room is not used up. The hermetically sealed drum positively prevents any fumes or moisture from entering your room, and the construction of both heating drum and burner enables you to get the greatest amount of heat at the lowest gas consumption.

SOUTH CITY JUDGE FINDS FURNITURE ON SIDEWALK

The latest incident in South San Francisco's political feud occurred last night, when Justice of the Peace Edward Farrell, going to his office to put in a little night work, found his office locked and its contents piled on the sidewalk outside the city hall, it is reported. Justice Farrell is said to have called a truck and had his office furniture and papers moved to the Methodist church, across the street. The justice announced that his official functions will not be interrupted by his change of location. Tuesday night Mayor McNellis and Trustees Blank and McCaffrey passed a motion demanding Justice Farrell's resignation. The justice declined to resign, and ignored the board's ultimatum. Justice Farrell is said to have been one of the signers of the petition demanding the recall of McNellis, Blank and McCaffrey.

STEAMER WRECKS BRIDGE OVER ALAMEDA ESTUARY

While thousands of home-bound East Bay citizens looked on in horror, the steamship Lancaster, operated by the Norton Lilly & Company, swung with terrific momentum into the open draw of the Webster street bridge over the Alameda estuary late Thursday afternoon and toppled the giant 340-foot span into the waters below. Three persons on the bridge, the bridge tender and two school boys, were hurled into the water and the tender and one boy so badly injured they may died. The damage is estimated at $100,000. It will take several months to replace the bridge, and in the meantime thousands of residents of Alameda and Oakland who had used the bridge as the key thoroughfare between the two communities will be forced to go several miles out of the direct route to use the High street bridge.

The Better BUICK

Starts easily — Buick motor cars are designed to run efficiently in every temperature, and under every climatic condition. Buicks start quickly, even at zero. The new, high-speed starting motor accomplishes this most desirable result.

Runs smoothly — Buick Automatic Heat Control reduces another cold-weather starting annoyance—that of bucking, spitting, misfiring engines. The exclusive Buick feature heats the fuel supply, and saves gasoline, automatically and immediately.

Stops safely — In rain, snow or sleet Buick mechanical 4-wheel brakes stop the car firmly, in a straight line. Neither heat nor cold affects the direct mechanical action of these brakes. There is no liquid in them to expand, contract or leak away.

and the Buick engine is full-pressure lubricated — The Buick engine is full-pressure lubricated. Every part gets a flood of oil as soon as the engine starts, every day in the year. An emergency feed tube siphons oil to the pump, even though the cold has congealed the oil around the pump screen.

The Market Street Railway Company

Announces

IMPROVED STREET CAR SERVICE FOR THE PENINSULA.

Commencing January 1, 1926, a change in service will be inaugurated over the San Mateo line from Fifth and Market streets, San Francisco. The San Mateo (No. 40) cars will endeavor to carry only passengers desiring to reach points south of the San Francisco county line.

A 10 cent fare will be charged on the San Mateo (No. 40) cars within the city limits of San Francisco. There will be no increase in fare over the present rates in San Mateo county.

Increased service on other local lines on Mission street will take care of local passengers in San Francisco.

This change will give Peninsula patrons increased comfort and convenience, inasmuch as the number of local passengers carried on these cars in San Francisco should be greatly reduced.

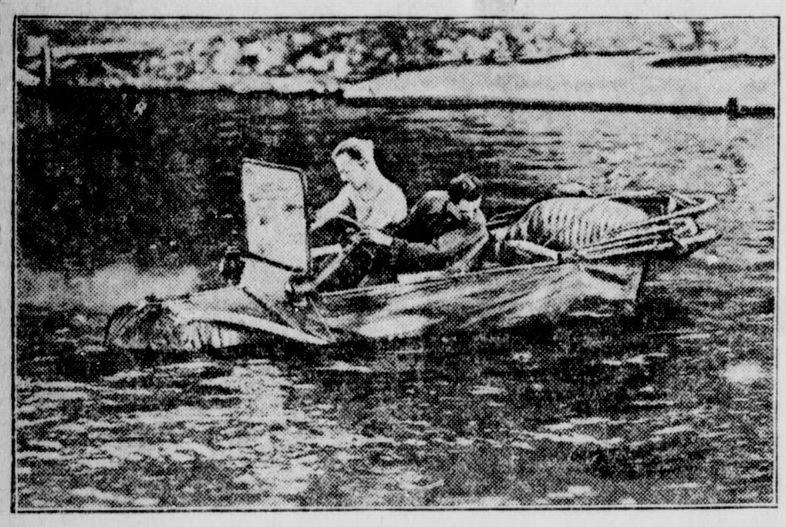
"AMPHIBIAN" FLIVVER FAILS TO WORK



Ambitious youths of the University of Wisconsin equipped their faithful flivver with "gills," etc., for use on the water. It worked once or twice, but then sunk and with it these particular ambitions of said youths.

BRAKES SHOULD BE TESTED OFTEN

Many Cars Skid Because of Unequal Division of Braking Power.

The brakes should be tested each day. Before going half a block from the garage make a service test by throwing out the clutch and applying the brakes. If possible, select a dry spot for making this test. Under no circumstances should the car be taken farther if the brakes are not operating properly; drive back to the garage and see that the faults are corrected before driving out again.

Keep in Condition.

To keep the brakes in good condition:

(a) Once in two months remove the rear wheels and wash the brake lining in kerosene. This removes all oil and grease which if present, take the "bite" out of the brakes. Never oil brake lining.

(b) Brakes squeal when they are glazed or when improperly adjusted. Squealing can be often stopped by removing wheels and roughening the brake lining with a stiff brush.

(c) If the brake lining is worn down to the rivets, sink the rivets still farther or have the brakes relined.

(d) Wipe off and oil the brake mechanism every 500 miles, or oftener.

(e) Make regular systematic brake inspection a habit. The loss of a cotter pin might lead to a serious accident. When a lock washer is removed, don't put it back; use a new one.

Many cars skid, not only because of slippery streets, but also because of unequal division of braking power. Jack up rear wheels and apply brake far enough so that it is just possible to turn one wheel by hand. Adjust brake on the other wheel so the same amount of energy is required to turn that wheel by hand. Test for unequal braking power at least once a month.

Apply Properly.

Do you always apply your brake properly?

(a) When coming to a stop on a straight-away, shut off the gasoline throttle and leave the clutch engaged until just before you come to a stop; this method of stopping is especially advisable in wet weather because it lessens the tendency of the car to skid. It also helps to distribute the braking power equally, and assists the action of the brakes. Do not shut off the ignition until after you have stopped; it may be necessary to make a quick start.

(b) In going down an ordinary hill, leave the clutch engaged and close the gasoline throttle. This helps cool the engine and also makes it unnecessary to use the brakes.

(c) In going down steep hills or when descending ordinary hills with a heavy load, put the gears in intermediate or low speed at the top of the hill and leave the clutch engaged. Shut off the gasoline throttle.

(d) In making an emergency stop, leave the clutch engaged, apply the foot brake and pull the hand brake; but do not "lock the wheels." Keep the wheels rolling; otherwise there is danger that the car may slide or skid.

(e) When applying brakes never lock the wheels. If wheels are locked, not only does it increase the liability of the car to skid, but it is extremely hard on tires.

Can Employ Alcohol as Fuel for an Automobile

The same type of engine is adaptable to the use of alcohol as fuel as is used today with gasoline, reports the United States bureau of standards.

This statement is made to dispel an erroneous belief that the use of alcohol requires an engine of higher compression than the type used for gasoline. The only change needed, say engineers of the bureau of standards, is a larger needle valve opening in the carburetor, to afford a richer mixture of alcohol and air for complete combustion.

"Alcohol does not require the employment of a much higher compression ratio than gasoline," the report reads. "Should alcohol or other fuels of equal anti-knock value become generally available compression ratios could be increased, and, as a consequence, higher efficiencies could be attained."

AUTOMOBILE STILE SAVES FARM GATES

Device Shown in Illustration Has Been Found to Be Time Saver.

Where a country road passed through a farmer's field and two gates had to be opened and closed every time a car passed, which meant a considerable waste of time for the motorist, the stile shown in the drawing was found quite a time saver. Two runs of 3 by 8-inch boards served as tracks and pieces of 2 by 6-inch material were spiked on the sides to prevent the wheels from slipping off. The whole track is, of course, securely braced and mounted on posts set in the ground. The stile makes it unnecessary to open and close the gates, and, besides, it is impossible for cattle to cross over on these tracks.—L. M. Jordan, Vredenburgh, Ala., in the Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Overcome Gas Pressure Troubles in the Tank

When the supply tank of a motor car using exhaust gas pressure feed to the carburetor is refilled with gasoline most drivers use the hand pump provided to obtain enough pressure in the tank to get the motor started. Generally there is enough gasoline in the carburetor to permit of some minutes' operation by which the pressure in the tank will be raised sufficiently by the exhaust so that resort to the hand pump is needless. On some cars the hand pump is so rarely used that the washers in it dry up and the device is rendered useless. In such cases the desired results may be obtained by temporarily plugging the outlet of the exhaust pipe and then cranking the motor. This will create excessive pressure in the exhaust pipe, which will be conducted through the regular pressure piping to the fuel supply tank. Thus a few turns of the crank will be as effective as the pump would be if it were working.

City Traffic Problems Older Than Automobile

London had its traffic problems hundreds of years before the automobile was ever thought of.

Old books set forth that, in the beginning of the Seventeenth century traffic troubles were so acute that contemporary author wrote an article on the subject entitled: "Coach and Sedan, Pleasantly Disputing for Peace and Precedence."

Incidentally, London was then described as a city of "fogge and rotten mistes," suffering from traffic congestion like mutton pies in a cook's oven."

SNAPPING TURTLES

"In July," said Mrs. Snapping Turtle, "I laid the eggs. I dug nice holes deep down in the ground—not so very deep down—but deep enough."

"Well," said Mr. Snapping Turtle, "which do you mean?

"Do you mean deep down or not so very deep down?"

"I mean deep enough down but not too deep down," answered Mrs. Snapping Turtle.

"In fact I mean just what I say."

"Oh," said Mr. Snapping Turtle. "That is one way of talking.

"In fact, now that I think about it, I consider it a good way.

"No one can correct you if you talk that way, at least it would be hard for anyone to correct you."

"You tried to and failed," said Mrs. Snapping Turtle, "so now you understand."

"Yes," said Mr. Snapping Turtle, "and so you can tell other turtles who might inquire that you dug just deep enough."

"Turtles are pretty tame here in the zoo," said Mrs. Snapping Turtle.

"Many of the little turtles hatch out eggs, too."

"Little turtles hatch out other little turtles," laughed Mr. Snapping Turtle.

"That sounds funny. You have a way, Mrs. Snapping Turtle, of saying things so they don't mean much of anything."

"I didn't say it just as you quoted me," said Mrs. Snapping Turtle.

"Besides, if you stopped to think, Mr. Snapping Turtle," Mrs. Snapping Turtle said proudly, "you would know that that sentence I just spoke or uttered meant a great deal.

"In the zoo the turtles, small in size, are the ones who aren't too lazy to lay eggs and hatch them out."

"You're right. I'll admit it," said Mr. Snapping Turtle.

"Yes, you're a smart, quick turtle. No wonder you are called a snapping turtle.

"Of course I am, too.

"But I consider you deserve the name many more times over than I do."

"Thank you," said Mrs. Snapping Turtle, who considered this quite a compliment.

"It's lovely in our outdoor home," said Mr. Snapping Turtle.

"We've been very lucky for we've lived all summer long and each and every summer that we've been in the zoo.

"Of course now the weather is quite different, quite different.

"It changes—the weather does.

"It snaps, too, sometimes. Really, I often wonder at times why people don't speak of snapping weather, just as they do of snapping turtles.

"I've heard them sometimes say that the weather was quite snappy.

"But they should sometimes call the weather snapping weather. I give them this suggestion for their use if they want it.

"Ah yes, it made us feel so well having a summer out-of-doors but now the Snapping Turtles must pay a com-

"The zoo is fine," said Mrs. Snapping Turtle, "and they have such a fine market.

Lady Fanny Burton

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

FANNY glanced up from the invoice she was making out and arose to greet the rather important looking person that had entered her tiny shop. The lady had been there before and had purchased a great assortment of chiffon lampshades, cushions and taffeta bedspreads.

Mrs. Bradshaw beamed upon Fanny with her most engaging smile.

"My dear," she said, "I have come down to ask you to do something for me and hope you are going to be nice about it. You're the only person I can ask to do it as you're so thoroughly English and—a—to the manner born—as it were."

A slow smile crept into Fanny's eyes. To Mrs. Bradshaw it was entirely enigmatical. But she went on with her proposition.

"Miss Burton," continued the society lady, "if you will join a large dinner party I am giving Friday evening and pose as a lady of title and one of my closest friends—I will give you one thousand dollars."

Fanny's eyes opened wide, then closed slightly in keen mental scrutiny. She did not, however, permit herself an answer to the curious suggestion. Instead she cast a glance into a tiny adjoining room in which soft flame curtains were swaying in the breeze and from which a glorious odor of coffee was wafted to her.

"How sweet of you," said Mrs. Bradshaw, accepting the unspoken invitation and she followed the lithsome Fanny. "I'm guilty of having had a secret hope that you would give me a cup of coffee."

When they were seated on opposite sides of a tiny, yellow clad table and sipping coffee from flame-colored cups Mrs. Bradshaw told her story.

"This dinner party I am giving will number among the guests four ladies from a small town near Boston. In that same town my husband built up his huge business—in trade. Honest, clean trade. Now, while these ladies all accepted my hospitality and pretended great friendship I knew they knifed me in their snobby, underhand way." Mrs. Bradshaw laughed good humoredly, "And now I just want to have some fun out of them and introduce them to a real lady of title. They'll talk about it to the end of their days and have it all over the local news. I won't give the joke away either—I only want to feel that I have put one over on them—it may wipe out a few of the old scars. I felt it then, horribly."

Fanny leaned swiftly near to Mrs. Bradshaw and slipped a cool hand into her friendly clasp. "I know that kind of person only too well," she said, "those who are friends during affluence."

"Then you will—come?"

"Yes. But only if you let me come as a friend and let me be numbered among your friends—afterward. All I want will be a lovely frock—I haven't one to suit the part."

"And you must call me Alice and you are—?"

"Fanny—shall we say Lady Fanny Burton?"

And on the Friday evening following, the four guests from the small town arrived and their complete subjugation and awe by the simple prefix, Lady, was all that could be expected. And when Mrs. Bradshaw, whose husband had been "in trade," was affectionately addressed by Lady Fanny as "Alice darling," they knew that to the end of their days they, too, would call her by that intimate term.

But the real surprise of the evening was when a strapping big man with a slight limp arrived and was taken in charge straight away by his aunt, Mrs. Bradshaw, and introduced to the titled guest.

There was a fleeting moment when the whole world seemed to stand still and a tremendous silence told of a great happening.

"Ted Bradshaw!" in a small, too trembling voice.

"Lady Fanny—oh—I can't believe it! Not really you?" in a man's voice that fought for steadiness.

He turned to the astonished aunt.

"Aunt Alice, you never knew why I took that trip to England, but it was to try to trace the only woman I ever could care for. Destruction of mistletoe in national forests of the United States has been ordered by the Department of Agriculture. The department doesn't object to the kissing, but to the mistletoe, which is regarded as a dangerous forest pest. A drive has been started against mistletoe in all national forests, and within ten years the department hopes to exterminate the plant.

Merely Time's Change

"The ambition of the young man of today," laments an eastern educator—and so far as we're concerned he'll have to do his lamenting alone—"is to acquire a flivver and a flapper," says the Detroit Free Press.

Well, what of it, and what can be done about it? The ambition of his dad and his grandad, probably, was to acquire a gig and a gal.

ADD CHIC TO FORMAL DRESS; TUCKS AND PLAITS REMAIN

WHICH shall it be, high-neck or decollette for the sumptuous formal frock? The mode answers—both. Impossible, say you, and inconsistent as well, to consider high-neck for evening wear? Look at the picture for the solution to the problem. Observe how, through simple manipulation of a matching scarf, the style-creator "serves two masters."

Scarves, arranged as pictured, are the last word from authoritative fashion sources. One sees them in great numbers, these scarf-collars, at every smart evening function. They are not an accessory, rather a very part of the dress, in that they are made of the same material. They must be wrapped about the throat, else they fail of smartness.

Showing How Scarf Is Worn.

In the instance of the model illustrated, the medium selected for this lovely scarfed frock is exquisitely supple chiffon velvet. The same costume would be eloquently representative of the mode, were it made of 'd or silver cloth, for evening gowns metallic fabric are very smart.

The very low flare attained by the et-on flounce is another smart item, his silhouette being fashions latest.

One among many of the points in favor of crepe, crepe satin and crepe de chine, each being registered among fashionable fabrics for spring, is that they are so adaptable to self-trimming effects. Many of the new gowns fashioned of these materials are pin-tucked or plaited.

The model in the picture exploits a decorative all-over effect achieved by means of wee plaits. These are applied in an intriguing way in that the upper portion of the dress displays the tucks run vertically, thus slenderizing the figure in appearance, while just below the girdle a plaided design varies the theme. There is a wide plaited flounce.

The craze for metal stitching and touches of metallic leather finds expression in a charming navy-crepe satin dress, which is all-over cross-barred with pin tucks stitched with gold thread. One of the early messages spring styles convey is that considerable pin-tucking accomplished with metal thread stitching will be featured during the coming season.

Another thought for the self-trimmed gown which is being carried out extensively is the scalloped hem-

Exploits Decorative All-Over Effect.

In accord with the style plan, the elaborate encrustation of beads, embroidery and interworkings of metal threads which distinguish this flounce, does not appear on the upper portion of the dress. "Beauty unadorned" around the neckline and arms is the edict.

Fur, that enriching embellishment and the uneven hemline also bespeak latest vogue. Very important is the rose bouquet at the shoulder. Scarcely ever is it omitted from evening attire—not roses always, but flowers tuned to the general scheme. Simple flower effects are preferred, the sort which give to evening dress a naive charm.

line. Sometimes the scallops edge shallow or flat ruffles in tiers.

The finely plaited skirt is one of the renewed promises for the coming season. With these, flashy printed silk blouses and tunics will be worn.

The early showing of spring dresses emphasizes gay coloring and also the continuance of the full or flare skirt. Necklines are both low and high, while sleeve treatments are given the prestige of much fanciful designing. Belts, girdles and especially the gypsy sash which winds about the hips so picturesquely are all variously introduced in the arriving models.

CULINARY HINTS

A well-made, nicely flavored and long-baked pumpkin pie is a work of real art in cooking. It should be snappy with ginger, sweet, but not too sweet, and rich with good milk and well-cooked pumpkin. Two eggs will be sufficient for an ordinary-sized pie, and a few drops of lemon extract or a little grated peel will make the pie different from the ordinary. When serving for a special occasion add whipped cream in which a little grated cheese has been stirred.

A pretty winter salad is prepared by using canned pears. Lay halves of pears, flat side down, on a crisp leaf of lettuce. Decorate with blanched almonds, putting them into the pear pointed down. Serve with any desired dressing. Frozen whipped cream, sweetened and flavored, then packed in ice and salt, and when firm served with bits of preserved ginger with the sirup or candied cherries makes a pleasing dish.

Apples cored and the centers filled with bananas cut into strips to fit the cavity, add butter and sugar and a little water, then baste while baking.

A quick dessert enjoyed by those who are fond of chocolate is Dresden crumbs: Take one cupful of bread crumbs, one-half cupful of grated chocolate, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a pinch of salt. Stir and mix well and bake until the chocolate is melted. Serve with sweetened whipped cream.

When a child or an older person who is ill refuses to drink milk or cocoa which is provided for them, give him a straw or two through which to drink.

Milk toast is a wholesome dish for child or adult and should be one of the common dishes served at least once a week. It is especially good for a hot supper dish.

Calves' hearts are tender and delicious cooked gently in a little butter after cutting into thin slices. Brown well and serve with the gravy, which may be thickened or not.

When preparing a meat loaf add one-half to one cupful of cooked oatmeal to the meat and arrange two or three hard-cooked eggs in the loaf so that when sliced they will add to its appearance.

When the housewife and mother makes the statement that her family will not eat this or that, which are valuable foods and needed in the diet, it is only admitting her lack of properly training her family to eat the things they should. It is not easy, but it has been done in thousand of homes where intelligence about foods is used.

Try These.

Oysters are so well liked and served in such a variety of ways that one never tires of them.

Oyster Roast.—Put a pint of oysters in an omelet pan, after heating it hot and adding a little butter; season with salt and pepper and cover to cook two minutes. Serve on buttered toast moistened with the hot oyster liquor.

Apple Meringue Pie.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of left-over apple sauce which has been sweetened, add two egg yolks, cinnamon and a bit of nutmeg and a tablespoonful of melted butter, with a cupful of cider. Place in a pastry-lined pie plate and bake until the crust is brown. Cover with a meringue prepared from the two egg whites and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Brown lightly.

Cuban Eggs on Toast.—Cook together for five minutes one-fourth of a cupful of sausage meat and one teaspoonful of onion, grated. Add to the pan six beaten eggs, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper, stir until the eggs are creamy. Pour over slices of well-buttered toast and garnish with fresh tomato, sliced and sprinkled with chopped green pepper.

Cuban Codfish.—Pick into pieces enough codfish to fill a cup, after it has been freshened. Fry an onion sliced thin in a little butter, add the fish, mix well, then cover with boiling water; add one-half a can of tomatoes, a tablespoonful of chopped green pepper and simmer gently for half an hour. If the tomatoes are very juicy less water will be needed. Serve the mixture well seasoned and hot on hot buttered toast.

Barbecued Mutton.—Make a sauce by melting two tablespoonfuls of butter, to this add the juice of half a lemon, one-fourth cupful of currant jelly, one-fourth teaspoonful of prepared mustard, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of cayenne and one teaspoonful of grated orange peel. Reheat the thin slices of cooked mutton in the sauce. Serve hot, but do not cook.

Is Winter Time Your Backache Time?

Does Your Back Foretell Every Change of the Weather? Do You Feel Old and Stiff and Suffer Sharp, Rheumatic Pains?

Then Look to Your Kidneys!

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, stiff and achy? Are you nervous and depressed; feel tired, worn out and miserable? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going?

Then look to your kidneys! Colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. They overload the blood with impurities that the kidneys have to filter off. The kidneys are apt to weaken under this rush of new work, become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold finds so many folks suffering with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities.

If this is the case with you, don't risk neglect! Help your weakened kidneys with a stimulant diuretic. Begin using Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. Local users testify to their worth. Ask your neighbor!

I had to pass the kidney secretions frequently at night, and they were highly colored and burned like hot coals. I also had dizzy spells. Doan's Pills soon cured me of the attack."

MRS. M. E. SPANGER, 701 Oak St., Roseville, Calif., says: "The flu left my kidneys in bad shape. I had a weak feeling in my back and when I tried to stoop I had catches in my kidneys and was hardly able to get around. My kidneys acted too often. Start Alike, Anyway

A teacher in the junior high school of Anderson was giving a lesson recently in the study of the Constitution and Declaration of Independence. In the course of the lesson she called for an explanation of the statement that all men are created equal. A small lad, overflowing with the ginger of youth, answered:

"Well, they all weigh about the same when they are born."—Indianapolis News.

Woman Has "Made Good"

Among women who have made good in local politics may be mentioned Miss Grace Schiska of Eugene, Ore. Miss Schiska made her political debut as a candidate for city recorder and was elected. Later she became a police judge and now she has been appointed to the office of county treasurer

Despot's Hairless Decree

Sir Harti Singh Bahadur, new maharajah of Kashmir, began his rule with an order that all his male subjects shave forthwith—beards, mustaches and the hair on their heads. This curious command was made as a mark of honor to his uncle, the late ruler, so that the whole country might assume a sort of hairless mourning in his memory. Dispatches from Kashmir do not tell how well the people obey the edict, but every dispatch points out the well-known fact that the new maharajah is known to the western world by another name, "Mister A."

Two Discoveries

"A naturalist has found that there are about 93,000 ants in an ant hill two feet high," solemnly stated Professor Pate.

"And I have found," snarled J. Fuller Gloom, the human hyena, "what the average naturalist is good for—to count ants."—Kansas City Star.

Thousands of people who are sufferers from constipation do not become aware of it until they seek out the cause of their frequent headaches.

"Those bilious headaches can be prevented"

"I know how agonizing they are. For years I was a chronic sufferer.

"And the headaches were not the worst part of it. The strong drugs I used to take to relieve the pain upset my stomach and slowly but surely undermined my general health.

"Finally I found out that my headaches were due to constipation. My doctor advised Nujol. After taking it regularly a few weeks the trouble disappeared.

"Since then I have never had another headache. There is no reason why I should, for the cause has been corrected."

Nujol Corrects Constipation in Nature's Way

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. Nujol simply softens the waste matter and thus permits regular and thorough elimination without overtaxing the intestinal muscles. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is gentle, safe and natural in its action.

You can take Nujol for any length of time without ill effects. To insure internal cleanliness, it should be taken regularly. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol today and begin to enjoy the perfect health that is possible only when elimination is normal and regular.

A Mexican bull arena, in which he struggles hand-to-hand with the maddened animal and saves his wonderful horse, Silver King, is the high spot in the first of the new Fred Thomson series of F. B. O. Western pictures, "Thundering Hoofs," which comes to the Daly Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday. The bull-ring incidents form the climax to as thrilling a story as anything that has been seen on the screen, and it shows again the fact that Fred Thomson is fast overtaking the other Western stars in popularity.

HOLIDAYS MADE BRIGHTER FOR HOSPITAL PATIENTS

The Christmas holidays were made brighter for a goodly number of the ward patients at Palo Alto base hospital this year because of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West.

On Saturday before Christmas the members of the Parlor visited the "boys" and took with them boxes and baskets laden with home-made cakes, cookies, candies, jelly and jam, besides gifts of cigarettes, cigars and tobacco. It was unanimously admitted by the boys of the ward that this little "cheer party" was a huge success, and the Native Daughters say they will make this an annual event of greater scope.

The committee handling the affair included the President, Mrs. Anna K. Bauer, Mrs. Rena Mathias, Misses Alice Mathias, Esther Forsell, Freda Christen and Theresa O'Connor.

THE COMING CITY ELECTION

Having been asked the question over and over again, "Who are the candidates for city trustees in the coming city election in April?" a reporter of this paper made many inquiries and found that so far only three candidates are in the field. T. P. Moran, H. H. Smith and T. F. O'Rourk, incumbents, will be candidates for re-election. He was also told by many that there is little interest in politics in Daly City, due to the satisfaction of the taxpayers in general with the thoroughly business-like administration of our city's affairs, and with the great progress which has been made.

CHIEF OF SAN MATEO FIRE DEPARTMENT RESIGNS OFFICE

Terminating four years as head of the San Mateo fire department, Chief Thomas Burke has handed his resignation to City Managr Weissgerber, to take effect January 1. Assistant Fire Chief Hughie Morris is slated to succeed Chief Burke, it is said.

Increasing duties and responsibilities in the fire department and the police department, both of which Mr. Burke has directed for the past four years, are given as the reason for his retirement as chief of the fire department.
